Doom, Dharma and the truth that sets us free: The Inner-Life Demands of Climate Change

Come and hear Alastair McIntosh, honorary professor in College of Social Sciences, University of Glasgow, author and activist on Wednesday 8th June in St Stephen's Church from 6pm.

The science of the Intergovernmental Panel in Climate Change is unequivocal. We're not about to go extinct on any credible scenario, but climate change is fast degrading the planet. It multiplies such factors as migration, conflict, food insecurity and habitat loss. But as COP26 shows once again, what the science says must be done and what politicians can deliver don't add up. What deeper truths might we be invited to face, both for us as individuals and in the activist and faith groups to which we might belong?

Refreshments available from 5.30pm.
